PETER KOGLER @ DIRIMART

“Untitled” April 2nd - May 10th 2011

Perception differing installation by Peter Kogler can be viewed in Dirimart between April 2nd and May 10th. In his first solo exhibition in Dirimart, Kogler diversifies the surfaces and intends to delude viewers' perception by occupying all over the gallery place with his design. The installation promises new visual experiences to the visitors.

Peter Kogler, one of the most famous Austrian artists of his generation, uses computer as an instrument, along with the earlier developments in digital techniques. Owing to their modular forms; ants, rats, pipes and lines can appear as elements to build up the main picture, just like pixels one after another.

Where the viewer stands has significant role in the exhibition as his or her perception is tested in a limited space. With Kogler's work, exhibition place transforms and makes visitors part of itself.

Peter Kogler is a familiar artist to Turkish art-lovers as he meets them several times with his carpet installation at Tophane-i Amire Centre of Culture, video installation for “Rhythm of Istanbul” at Akbank Sanat and “Lives and Works in Istanbul” project of Istanbul 2010 European Capital of Culture.

Peter Kogler's installation can be visited throughout April 2nd to May 10th in Dirimart.
